Roosevelt Letter Demands Passage of Court Measure

Says Approval of Bill Is Congress' Duty at This Session

RAPS OPPONENTS

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, Is Acting Democratic Leader

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt replied with a ringing "no" Thursday night to those who have urged him to drop his court reorganization proposal as the result of the death of Senator Robinson, the democratic leader.

"I believe it is the duty of the congress, and especially of the members of the majority party in the senate and the house of representatives, to pass legislation at this session to carry out the objectives," he declared.

Abandonment of "judicial reform" means abandonment of the goals of economic security and social betterment, the president added, and the responsibility will be "squarely on the congress of the United States."

Outlines Attitude

Outlining his attitude in a long letter to Senator Barkley of Kentucky, acting democratic leader, Mr. Roosevelt said he had hoped with him a "decent respect" for the memory of Senator Robinson would defer political and legislative discussions at least until after his funeral.

He said he was glad Barkley had called his attention to "certain events of Wednesday and Thursday."

"It is with regret," Mr. Roosevelt wrote, "that I find that advantage is being taken of what, in all decency, should be a period of mourning."

When he recommended reorganization of the judiciary last February 5, he said, the time had come to act upon that subject.

"At no time have I or any member of my administration insisted that the method or methods originally proposed be sacred or final except to point out that action was of immediate necessity and, therefore, that the process of constitutional amendment was an impossibility if the objective was to be attained within a reasonable time."

"It is, of course, clear that any determined minority group in the nation could, without great difficulty, block ratification by one means or another in at least thirteen states for a long period of time."

Believed Constitutional

The president declared both the original court bill, for six new justices, and "Senator Robinson's bill," which would permit the appointment of one new justice each calendar year, are clearly constitutional.

The president revealed Senator Robinson had advised him "about a month ago" that a new method would have to be worked out if reorganization of the judiciary were to be attained. He said he told the senator the bill he proposed would be a satisfactory method, and told him further that responsibility for adoption of the method rested primarily on congress.

"On the president falls the responsibility of recommending objectives," he added.

Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.), leader of the court bill opposition, replied to the president's letter in a statement saying he had disagreed with few of the chief executive's objectives, but that they should be obtained "through constitutional means."

"His objectives can be obtained in a reasonable time by submitting a constitutional amendment to the people," Wheeler said.

The Montana senator added that it was "regrettable that the president issued a statement accusing senators of taking advantage of the untimely passing of Senator Robinson."

Emerging out of some hiding place for ten public minutes as they hurried aboard the Empress of Britain in Quebec, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and Ethel duPont Roosevelt, the disappearing bride and groom in public life in years, posed for pictures but indicated they hoped to be forgotten newlyweds in Europe, whither they're honeymoon bound.

Nation's Leaders Pay Respects to Senator Robinson

Simple State Funeral Held Noon Friday in Senate Chamber

BODY TO LITTLE ROCK

Governor Bailey Considering Calling Election September 14

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The nation's great, led by President Roosevelt, paid their last respects Friday to Joseph T. Robinson Democratic senate leader.

At the stroke of noon, a throng of frock-coated dignitaries marched into the gold and marble senate chamber for the simple state funeral.

The air was heavy with fragrance of flowers.

The dead leader's massive silver casket occupied the center hall, only an arm's length away from the empty chair Robinson used during his last 24 years in the senate.

Special seats flanking the bier were occupied by the immediate relatives, including Mrs. Robinson.

After the funeral in Washington the body was to leave for Little Rock where Methodists rites and burial will be held Sunday.

Expressions of sympathy poured into the state department from foreign governments. A typical message, from Minister Michael MacWhite of the Irish Free State, voiced "profound regret" at Robinson's death, and offered "sincere sympathy" to his family and the United States.

Consider Special Election

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Governor Bailey said Friday that Governor Bailey was considering fixing September 14 as the date of a special election to fill the senate vacancy caused by the death of Joseph T. Robinson.

The Arkansas Democrat, however, said that it had learned that the State Democratic committee would meet soon after the election call to nominate Governor Bailey to fill the vacant senate seat.

30-Day Mourning

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — (AP) — Governor Carl E. Bailey proclaimed a 30-day mourning period for the state of Arkansas in respect of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, who died in Washington Wednesday.

The proclamation ordered that the state offices suspend all business from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m. Friday while the funeral services are being conducted in the senate chamber in Washington.

The executive directed that all flags in the state be flown at half mast throughout the mourning period and that the state military department, state police and all other state agencies lend every aid "to give such evidence of their veneration and appreciation in these trying hours."

Senator Robinson's Last Picture

Intent on study of a workable compromise on a Supreme Court reorganization bill, Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas is shown here at his desk in the Senate Office Building only two days before his sudden and tragic death. It is believed that this picture of the late senator, taken in the midst of the stress and strain of the fight that claimed his life, is the last comparable portrait made of him.

Typical Gangland "Rides" Reported by N. Y. Officers

Slayings Follow Big Batch of Federal Liquor Indictments

DOCTOR IS VICTIM

Noted Obstetrician Is Mysteriously Shot to Death

NEW YORK — (AP) — Two slayings bearing earmarks of typical gangland "rides" confronted Brooklyn police Friday within 24 hours after the biggest batch of federal bootlegging indictments had been returned since repeal of prohibition.

One of the victims had been found with adhesive, his skull cloven open, gasoline poured in it and the body fired. Police said that identification would be difficult.

The other victim was identified as Samuel Silverman, 25. His body was found in the charred ruins of an automobile with three bullet holes in his head and the body saturated with kerosene.

Doctor Is Killed

PROVIDENCE, R. I. — (AP) — Dr. George Webster, noted obstetrician, died Friday on an operating table at a hospital here, his lips sealed on the mysterious circumstances surrounding his shooting.

As police hurried to his home after being summoned by Dr. Webster, who crawled mortally wounded to a telephone, Patrolman Charles McNamara reported that the physician told him "don't look for clues now."

"I'll tell you about the shooting when you get me to a hospital."

Upon arrival at the hospital, Dr. Webster was placed upon an operating table and died without giving officers any clue as to the person or persons responsible for his death.

Conviction Upheld

NEW YORK — (AP) — Conviction of Charles Luciano, Manhattan vice lord, and his co-defendants on charges of compulsory prostitution, was unanimously upheld Friday by the appellate division of court.

Singing Group to Meet at New Hope

Hempstead County Organization to Elect New Officers

T. M. Rowe, president of the Hempstead County Singing Convention announced Friday that new officers would be elected when the organization meets Sunday at New Hope church on the Hope-Blevins road.

Mr. Rowe also announced a musical program that will consume most of the day. Several quartets and individual singers have been invited.

He urged the public to bring song books and basket lunches. A large crowd is expected to attend, Mr. Rowe said.

Besides the election of officers, other business is expected to come before the convention.

Summer School at Guernsey Opened

Enrollment at the summer session of Guernsey school shows an increase over the total enrollment at the end of last semester, Hugh B. Bristow, principal, said Friday.

A 10 per cent increase is shown in the grammar grades with a five per cent gain in the high school grades.

Mr. Bristow said that the school year will have children of school age, 6 years, on or before December 1 are urged to start them immediately.

If they do not enroll during the first month of summer school they will not be permitted to enter later during the year, Mr. Bristow said.

Preacher Admits He Killed Woman

Confession Says He Tossed Body Into Mississippi River

PITTSBURGH, Ill. — (AP) — Merrill Johnson, states attorney of Pike county, said Thursday night the Rev. C. E. Newton, 51, had admitted he struck Mrs. Dennis Kelly, 45, on the head with a hammer and tossed her body into the Mississippi river last Tuesday.

The minister's confession in regard to the death of his former parishioner and neighbor at Paris, Mo., was made in the county jail here after he had denied for two days any connection with the crime.

"Me and Mrs. Kelly were riding along in my car," Johnson said he related in the statement. "I wanted to turn back home, but she didn't."

"We began to scuffle in the car and she fell out, striking her head and injuring herself. Trying to get her back into the car I fell out too."

"I got panicky and struck her on the head with a hammer, and then drove back to the bridge (Mark Twain bridge across the Mississippi river at Hannibal, Mo.) and pushed her over the banister."

Navy Nearing End of Fruitless Hunt

Noted Psychic Predicts Earhart Will Be Rescued This Week-End

HONOLULU — (AP) — Fifteen hundred sweltering sailors labored toward the finale of their heroic but forlorn quest of the South Seas for Amelia Earhart and Frederick J. Noonan.

Forty-two planes again left the decks of the aircraft carrier Lexington for their third sweep of the equatorial seas about Howland island.

Three and one-half hours later the air fleet returned, empty-handed as usual to the Lexington.

The left flank of the fleet reported encountering impenetrable rain squalls. Searchers said the area it was supposed to have covered would be gone over again Friday.

Sharks were numerous in the area, several were caught from the Lexington's decks and the fliers reported sighting many whales.

Zero hopes and sizzling temperatures marked the final phase of the disheartening search. Rain squalls during the night alleviated somewhat the oppressive heat but the last shred of optimism was gone from the searchers' minds.

Thirteen days have elapsed since Miss Earhart and Noonan disappeared, presumably near Howland, while attempting to fly 2570 miles from New Guinea to the tiny American island outpost near the equator.

Ships and fighting planes covered more than 200,000 square miles of the remote area without finding a trace of the plane in which the famous aviatrix and Noonan were flying around the world "just for fun."

Says Amelia Is Alive

SEATTLE — (AP) — Gene Dennis, internationally noted psychic, said her girlhood neighbor, Amelia Earhart, is alive and safe on a South sea island and will be rescued "possibly this week-end."

Miss Dennis, wife of J. Von Herberg, Seattle theater magnate, said Miss Earhart's husband, George Palmer Putnam, had appealed to her in a series of long distance telephone conversations and sent her a pair of Miss Earhart's stockings and a handkerchief of Miss Earhart's navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, to aid her psychic efforts.

Highland Peach Crop 50% Normal

Elberta Peaches Bring $2 Per Bushel at DeQueen Market

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Despite spring freezes, the Nashville area will harvest a peach crop of approximately 50 per cent of normal, Roy Sellers, extension economist in marketing, announced.

He said heaviest shipments were expected from the section next week, and the bureau of agricultural economics would establish a temporary field office at Nashville to provide peach growers daily market reports.

DE QUEEN, Ark. — (AP) — The first carload of Elberta peaches from Sevier county's 1937 crop was loaded here Thursday.

Manager Ike Slaton of a produce firm here said the price for the peach crop was $2.00 per bushel for first grade fruit and $1.50 for second grade F.O.B. at the car.

Peach growers estimate this year's crop will be slightly better than half of normal despite Easter freezes.

$303,362 Advanced to Borrowers for Home Financing in State

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Money advanced by insured savings and loan associations in Arkansas for June in the home financing field totaled $303,362 in 199 loans, according to a report for the month compiled by the Federal Home Loan Bank of Little Rock.

The Hope Federal Savings and Loan Association is a member of the Little Rock bank and participated in the total lending activities of the state by caring for local needs.

Throughout the state of Arkansas, greatest volume of lending activity was reported in the refinancing and repair field, with $3 loans for $100,505 being made for that purpose.

"This activity of insured associations in the state is indicative of the service the associations are to their communities," said B. H. Wooten, president of the Little Rock bank.

"Through local investments, which are insured up to $5,000 against loss by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and through credit which may be extended by the Little Rock bank, these associations have sufficient funds at all times with which to make all reasonable loans in the home financing field."

Besides the major activity for June, lending operations included 34 loans for new construction totaling $79,900; 47 loans for purchase of homes totaling $80,352; and 35 loans for all other purposes totaling $42,605.

In the five-state district, 1,629 loans, totaling $3,583,606 were made for all purposes.

Pick of Colleges Depends on Needs of Student, Family

College in the fall. Which one shall it be, now that Jim is out of high school, and Mary has hung up her commencement dress and framed her class picture?

The choice is not that it is settled, for today the plan is not to wait until the valedictory has been given, before going into the further detail of college, but rather to prepare for a definite place, during the senior year, and get all the credits and units in shape. Each college has its own special requirements for entrance, especially the big dozen that put up the stiff wall of "college boards."

However, it is not always thus, and some students enroll in college or university as late as August, when they discover that Uncle Mack has changed his mind about the country having a surplus of educated men and women who cannot find jobs.

Whatever the reason, it doesn't matter. Is John going to college? And are the sessions still open to family vote? If so, can anyone get in? And may I have the floor for a moment? I do not wish to interfere, but there are a few wayside signs I would like to refer you to, as I have been along the road and gone through it all. My errors and successes may be of some service.

Large colleges and universities are excellent, but don't let the magic of name discourage you from looking into the smaller ones that may be nearer, less expensive, and more suited to your finances. And don't let the name "denominational" school influence you against it. Most of these are indeed splendid, and are not "goody-goody," but earnest, high-class places.

Make at least a rough outline of subjects to be studied with some direction toward a definite end. If you merely look for general culture, then subjects may be elected almost at random, but even so, one "major" may be the all-important factor of later successes in the student's life.

Co-educational schools are good for some and not for others. If John has fooled his time away with girls in high school, and needs to get down to brass tacks now, think it over well. The same with Mary or Myrtle. By the same token, if they need more social life and the mixed influence of both girls and men, put it within their reach. For the level-headed, who can take it or leave it, that's fine. Any choice is right.

Shall John work his way through? This depends. Not if he is not strong, or is carrying a heavy load of classes. He needs plenty of sleep and can't work and study, too. But if he is able -- yes.

If possible, get into the car, go and see a few of these schools and talk to the dean. Never buy a pig in a poke. And if you fear a too-traditional school, that quarrels with your democratic ideas, why make yourself uneasy? You have a right to have some say-so in your child's future convictions. It is your money, after all, and John is your son.

Remember there are courses in agriculture, forestry, the varied sciences and engineering of many kinds. The trained man of the future won't hesitate to get dirt on his hands. Playwriting and authorship are splendid for vocations, but experience of real life is their soul. Something hard and fast should be learned as well.

A thorough course in business, business ethics and the law of business can't be beaten. Not scatter-daubing, but honest, hard work along these lines. For girls, along with liberal arts, should go vocational study with an end in view.

Think well. Plan and know what you are paying your money for. Never was time better spent.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Here's Good Reading for Your Vacation

Along about this time of year, the hapless reviewer is apt to encounter repeated variations of this question: "What's a good book--not very heavy, something that will make me laugh--to read on my vacation?"

Reviewers answer according to their consciences, if any. This summer, however, the answer is easier. P. G. Wodehouse is out with a new book, "The Crime Wave at Blandings" (Doubleday, Doran; $2)--and all that really needs to be said is that the book is genuine, up-to-standard Wodehouse.

It is not a novel; instead, it is a collection of short stories, in which Mr. Wodehouse continues his tireless explorations of silly-as-Engishmen, pottering noblemen, swag young things and the laugh-provoking vagaries of this unpredictable existence of ours.

He tells, for instance, of the hapless Lord Ensforth, who rid himself of an unwanted secretary by shooting a posteriori, with an air rifle, an eminent Sir Hugo Drake and in which a youthful and feminine tor from America helped him solve the problem of a wayward nephew, Mulliner, and his engaging story, mustache contest between Lord Ensforth and Sir Preston Polden, oh, well, you get the general idea.

All of this, in the customary manner, adds up to a book that is not only a pleasure to read, but also a book that keeps you chuckling with either insulting your intelligence or requiring you to think about when you stop to think about "Crime Wave at Blandings."

Odds Against British Gamble on Germany

SINCE the airplane, the submarine and the long range gun reduced Great Britain's so-called "isolated grandeur" to a meaningless phrase, the loyal subjects of the House of Windsor have been striving desperately to get their feet down on some good, solid continental ground.

Now, at last, they seem to be making headway--so much in fact, that their momentum may carry them irrevocably into the weirdest potpourri of world politics ever seen.

BRITAIN'S proposition, as officially suggested in the recent adjourned imperial conference in London, is to win German friendship and co-operation by divorcing the World War peace treaties from the League of Nations.

The effect would be, the British hope, to make the league so inoffensive to Germany that she could not refuse to rejoin. Furthermore, having done this favor for the Nazis, Britain would be in line for all the trade and good will controlled by Herr Hitler.

Britain's sincerity in seeking a rapprochement with Germany can not be doubted, and it is praiseworthy that one nation had the courage to propose, at least, some way of bringing the Nazis back to the family council table of nations.

But it appears that the British gesture overlooks some possibilities which may bear importantly on the final outcome. For instance, if the war treaties written into the body of the league have been such a thorn in Europe's side, what is to become of them if and when they are broken away from the league? However unfair the treaties themselves may be, they are the life-givers for practically all the smaller nations of Europe. With international honesty no better now than when a scrap of paper became the torch that kept World War fires burning, these smaller nations could rightly fear for their safety.

Then there is Germany's ambition as an exponent of Fascism in "free" Danzig and Spain and "independent" Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland. Britain is gambling its heavy interest in these territories with any deal that makes the league the free-wheeling kind of vehicle that Germany wants.

AT BEST, the British imperial conference proposal seems a visionary, based on the assumption that a free-will offering and a handshake are going to effect a benevolent, overnight reconstruction of Hitler's foreign policy.

Strangest of all is the fact that the conference found this solution to a vast problem practically in one single strong, while a proposed trade pact with the United States, promising to link the two greatest English speaking nations with a tangible bond of mutual benefit, has failed, so far, to materialize because of the "long-negotiations" involved.

Beauty and Beefsteak

EVIDENCE that even the lowing herd is not immune to the current beauty vogue comes steadily from the nation's livestock shows. One exhibitor at a recent Alabama stock show reported 65 entries there with finger waves, and said he saw, at a Chicago exhibit, many cattle with curled hair and waxed horns and hoofs.

There was a day when to describe a bull as "beautiful" would have exposed a pathetic unawareness of fine barnyard proprieties. And to those who always believed the brush and curry comb were equipment enough for the bulpen boudoir, finger waves and manures will seem uncalled for.

Doubtless any number of 4-H youths and professional stockmen could defend the new trend, and actually there is no reason why prospective cattle show royalty should not be crowned in coronation attire. But, supposing a curly cow does win more prizes, there remains the pertinent and hard-to-answer question: How much does a finger wave help a beefsteak?

Varied Forms of Kidney Inflammation Makes Diagnosis, Treatment Difficult

(No. 267)

If the cause of inflammation of the kidneys could be definitely determined in every case, it would be easy to list the different forms and the associated diagnoses.

Everything depends, of course, on whether the inflammation of the kidney is classified according to what is seen of the kidney at operation or after the patient dies, or whether the condition is classified wholly according to the symptoms.

There is one form of inflammation of the kidney which comes on suddenly in the young people. Its cause is unknown but it is believed to be due to a severe infection.

In these cases the person becomes severely sick; his urine is cloudy, dark and scanty. Sometimes there is visible blood in the urine.

Usually if the infection is removed or if the patient recovers from an infectious disease that is coincidental, the kidney also begins to clear up. This is an acute form of Bright's disease.

The most serious of all forms of inflammation of the kidney is the chronic form of Bright's disease. It seldom occurs before the age of 40. It comes on very gradually. Sometimes it follows acute Bright's disease.

In most of these cases, the patient has already begun to have some hardening of the arteries and a rise in blood pressure. The kidneys become inflamed and the tissue is destroyed so that the urine is thin and watery. It also contains albumin.

Gradually waste products, which ought to be eliminated by the kidney, accumulate in the blood. These affect the entire body.

There may be enlargement of the heart or the patient may die from a chronic poisoning of the body with the results of these urinary products, this condition being called uremia.

Sometimes when a rise in the blood pressure is hereditary or sometimes when it comes on without any appreciable cause, the blood pressure disturbance may go on for some time before there are symptoms that the kidney is affected. In these cases the kidneys may also show signs of a chronic inflammation.

When the blood vessels throughout the body are hardened, naturally those in the kidney may also be affected. Usually it is the large blood vessels of the kidney, rather than the small ones, that are concerned. Every tissue in the body may be affected with the difficulties in the circulation of the blood under such circumstances.

In this form of kidney disease also, the treatment is directed to the body as a whole rather than to the kidney. This form of inflammation of the kidney is frequently called the nephritis of old age.

A fourth form of nephritis is that caused by bacteria which get into the kidneys by way of the blood or which develop in association with the formation of stones or which get into the kidney by extension from below.

This form of inflammation is known as pyelonephritis because there is a combination of all of the symptoms of infections with those particularly concerning the kidney.

It should be apparent that it is necessary to know exactly what is wrong before the correct kind of treatment can be given.

will be never to have to pace the floor again at Long's, greeting guests with a set smile. Sometimes I wonder when I leave the room and passersby glance at me, if my expression's like the famous Cheshire cat's... mentioned it to Gail one day...

"No, booby, it's your gorgeous golden hair they're looking at... wishing they'd natural curls like yours... and big blue eyes, too."

I laughed. According to Dad, my hair was never as lovely as my mother's, though its natural wave saves me lots of money. Well, my afternoon hour is almost over... more anon.

WEATHER decidedly chilly in the region of my heart. Roger and I have come to the parting of the ways. It was Roger versus Peter. Peter won. Maybe I was foolish to send Roger out of my life. I know there will never be any one like him again. We were talking things over... making plans for our future... one minute everything seemed all right... next moment we were at loggerheads when Roger said:

"Send Peter to camp... that's the very thing... just what I suggested the other day."

"But, Roger," I cried in alarm, "Peter's not sturdy enough now to be sent away from home."

He laughed, then caught me in his arms. "You don't want to make a mollycoddle of him. He's a fine little chap if you don't spoil him."

"Spoil him?" I said, and a shrill note leaped into my voice. "I would never spoil Peter; but he needs care."

"He'll get it there. I know a fellow who's sending his sons to camp. I'll talk to him. I'm sure Peter would enjoy that sort of life. Besides he'll learn to stand on his own feet, so when he goes to boarding school in fall, he'll be able to take care of himself."

"Who said he was going to boarding school? I'll never consent to that."

Before I realized it I was arguing furiously with my darling, though I love him so. Then Roger declared if I wouldn't listen to reason, there was nothing further to be said.

I looked at him as I twisted my engagement ring about my finger... I don't love Peter more than him... why couldn't he understand that my love for my small brother is very different from the love I have for him? Besides Roger knows what I promised Dad and Mimi.

I thought of Angela as Roger started to the door. Was there any truth to that gossip, I wondered? I drew off the ring which he had placed so tenderly on my finger a few months ago, and handed it to him.

John's Bench Just an Extra Restful Touch Far

the Seat of the Filmland Mighty

HOLLYWOOD

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD--Across the boulevard from the Warner Brothers studio in Burbank is a wooden bench where extras--almost invariably they are extras, because they don't have cars of their own--can sit and wait for the Hollywood bus.

The bench has been there nearly two years, and on it have rested thousands of players, young and old, hopeful and discouraged, all of them tired. It is a good, substantial affair, its feet set in concrete, its planks painted red.

First it was white, and on the back in neat black letters were the words, "John's Bench." Last Memorial Day it bloomed into scarlet, and on the back appeared the same two words, "John's Bench," in scrawling script.

Of the thousands who sat on it, many wondered about it. After the bench changed color all sorts of legends grew up about the identity of "John." It was only by chance that the true story became known among the extras, and the facts are not half as exciting as the conjectures.

A Mother's Memorial

"John" never sat on the bench. He never worked in Hollywood. He was an ambitious young actor in England until, two years ago, he died.

The news came to his mother. She is Mme. Carrie Daumery, a French woman who lived most of her years in England, but who has been a bit player and extra in Hollywood for some time now.

Her only son was dead in England. She could not go there. She could not bring his body here. But she wanted to do something. She had to do something.

She thought about it as she stood in the evenings, wearily, and waited for the bus. She thought it would be nice to sit down. She thought about building a bench.

She had a little money. The casting office at Warners had orders from the executive office to keep Mme. Daumery on the payroll when she had not other work. So she ordered the bench built as a memorial to her son. No permission was asked.

She merely found a man who did that kind of work and took him to the place and said, "Build here a place for sitting, and make it strong so it will last a long time." And she gave him the words that she wanted painted on the bench.

It was not a very impressive memorial. Just a wooden seat, placed there by the curb in front of Bill Brennan's sandwich shop. Mme. Daumery felt pretty good about it because she sat there herself and heard the grateful words of other tired extras who would sink down there and say, "Well, God bless this 'John,' whoever he is, because I'd have screamed if I'd had to stand in these shoes another minute. I thought they'd never get that last scene. I was about ready to hobble to the director and..."

This last Memorial Day came, and Bill Brennan went to his sandwich shop mostly from force of habit, because the studio was closed. He saw something that he never will forget.

He saw Mme. Daumery, dressed in her quaint finery, on her knees beside the bench, painting it red. She said, "I cannot make beautiful my boy's grave, so instead I am fixing up the bench."

When the painting was finished, she bought a hamburger and sat on it, waiting for the paint to dry, having no small brush, she used her long, tapering, blueveined, finger as the best-known extra in the business took the next bus to Hollywood.

Mme. Carrie Daumery is one of the best-known extras in the business. If she sat opposite you in a play, you'd nudge your companion and say, "Isn't that a character?"

And that's exactly the reason why she's a well-known extra. Casting directors remember her as a caricature in Dresden. She is tall and very straight. Others extras call her "The Countess."

She wears old-fashioned dresses and a velvet ribbon around her neck, and Queen Mary hats. She wears a well, and her gray hair always is perfectly groomed. And nobody ever has heard her complain of weariness.

Plants Need Darkness

WASHINGTON--(AP)--Gangway for aunts!

They're neither typographical errors nor cousins of penguins. They're nothing more or less than the hormones that regulate the growth of all plants, including the grass in your front yard.

Science has just discovered that the activity of aunts in stimulating the growth of plants comes principally in the darkness. Therefore darkness is as essential to plant growth as is light.

The discoverers of this strange phenomenon of the plant world are Dr. Earl S. Johnson of the Smithsonian Institution and Dr. Paul R. Burkholder of Connecticut college.

These Things Are Free

In gloomy tones we need not cry—"How many things there are to buy!" Here is a thought for you and me—"The best things in life are free!" The air, the sunshine and the sea. All gladness, beauty—these are free. Our faithful friendships, sympathy; The job of living—these are free. All loving service, loyalty. Our Father's protection—these are free. The more we look the more we see How many precious things are free. The heart will find more than the eye Of things we do not have to buy. Let's stop and think; let's know and feel. That things like these are truly real. Yes, we think how very rich we are When all the best of things are free. —Selected.

God Encourages a Leader

Text: Exodus 23-16; 4:10-16; 3:1

The lesson of today only enforces what we have already considered concerning God's encouragement of Moses and his strengthening of a leader who felt his own weakness and inadequacy.

We are told, sometimes, that the God of these ancient Israelites was a tribal God, and that they had not found the glorious conception that arose in later Israel and in New Testament times, of a God of the whole earth.

But it is something more than such a limited conception that one finds in the representation of God as speaking to Moses. When Moses asks his name and how he shall know and tell his people of the divine reality, the reply is that he is to say, "I AM hath sent me unto you."

"I AM THAT I AM"—what a noble conception that is, conveying so magnificently the emphasis upon the living presence of God! This God of the Fathers is an everlasting God, a covenant making and a covenant keeping God in whom men of devotion and faith can find security and strength.

Moses is still concerned about his lack of qualification as a leader. He is conscious that he is not eloquent. He is slow of speech and of tongue. Here again though, lack of eloquence is not to be despised. Too many great and real leaders have been feeble in speech!

This was one of the complaints against Paul, whom we have compared to Moses, that his presence was weak, and that he lacked the gift of speech, of Apollos, and others. But one can think of many men small in stature and unimpressive in presence and speech who have, nevertheless, been the creators and inspirers of great causes and movements, and who have accomplished almost incredible things simply because faith and determination have driven them, and they have become the medium of a greater power than themselves.

The Lord rebuked Moses because of his lack of faith in himself. "Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh a man dumb, or deaf, or seeing, or blind?" Cannot God, in His power give words to men who lack eloquence?

Nevertheless, Moses found a mouthpiece in Aaron, his brother, who was evidently a man of words as Moses was a man of action.

Thus equipped, with a new inner strength and with the support of the eloquent Aaron, Moses goes down to his task to face Pharaoh in the name of the God of Israel, and to say, "Let my people go, that they may hold a feast unto me in the wilderness."

It was not to be as easy a task as Moses might have supposed. God's will is for the deliverance and safety of his children, but there are problems of human freedom and destiny that men have to work out in co-operation with God, and the divine power does not work miracles where men themselves fail. The way that was before Moses was to test alike his faith, his courage, and his strength.

The call of a man to a great task is only the first incident in his destiny.

The real time of testing comes not in his acceptance of the call, but in the power of faith and will with which he holds to his task, day after day, no matter what the discouragements and no matter what the dangers.

Moses became a great leader not merely through his call, but by the strength of his faith and his unyielding will.

Whirlwind Courtship Recipe: Take Her Up in the "Cyclone"

By CHARLES NORMAN
AP Feature Service Writer

PALISADE, N. J.—Sex and fear are the thrill ingredients that go into amusement park coasters and rides.

Back of them is a basic principle that makes money. The principle is: let the public in on it—people are happy when they find out what makes the wheels go round.

So say the brothers Irving and Jack Rosenthal, designers and operators of speed thrill contraptions for 20 years. They were responsible for the Cyclone roller coaster at Coney island 10 years ago, the one with the precipitous drop that made strong men pale and women scream.

Cyclone Courtship

The Rosenthals are proud of the Cyclone, even at this late date, with newer, speedier projects and a new amusement park venture across the Hudson river from Manhattan.

"Why," says Irving, who is more loquacious than his brother, "Colonel Lindbergh used to come every day and ride on it before he flew to Paris. We even had customers who stayed on for hours. It cost a dollar too, for a minute and a half."

"We attribute a lot of marriage to the Cyclone. When a girl screamed, her bashful boy friend put his arm around her. You see? We helped break the ice."

Even in the latest, up-to-the-minute, break-neck speed thrills, the romantic angle is ever-present in the form of an enclosed ascent, where boys and girls may kiss before they scream and fall into each other's arms for dear life.

Bobsled Run's a Wow

The development of speed thrills closely parallels the advent of the automobile, the motorboat, the airplane and, finally the bobsled run, the ne plus ultra of sensation, according to Irving, who, however, didn't use the phrase.

"We saw that the public was nosy," he says candidly. "It wanted to know how things were done. That's all we needed to know."

"We developed the dodging car. When people got behind the wheel, they were happy. They were driving, just like the folks with automobiles. This was when automobiles were still a novelty."

"The public, you see, wants to keep up with the Joneses. After the auto thrill, they wanted a motorboat thrill, because they had heard of it. We gave it to them. Then they wanted to go up in the air. So we designed the flying scooter. It goes in circles, and dips and loops."

"Now," says Irving, and his eyes light up, and even brother Jack, who has been listening quietly seems imbued with fervor, "now it's the Lake Placid bobsled run. Who goes to Lake Placid? Only the choice few. So we give the public the thrills of the famous bobsled ride—72 miles an hour on the curves—the greatest creation yet created in an outdoor amusement park!"

Stratosphere's Next

The bobsled run cost $135,000 the brothers say, was under construction from January to July 1, and contains 280,000 board feet of lumber.

"It may come to $450,000," says Jack. "That's because it's being covered with fake icicles and splashes of camouflage snow."

"The first human beings on the bobsled roller coaster were the Rosenthal brothers, but the first trial run was done with sandbags. It was only after the brothers tried it out that it was found that on some of the curves the coaster sleds went up too high. It's one of the things that make the amusement business interesting."

"What's next?" exclaimed Irving. "We're working on a stratosphere flight. We'll shoot the car out of a cannon with compressed air. Oh, boy! You'll see it at the World fair."

Sermon Subject

"What About It, Old Man," will be Rev. Bert Webb's subject on Sunday night. This is the second in a series he is delivering. Last Sunday night Pastor Webb spoke to practically a full house on, "What Others Have Done," a special young peoples sermon.

Next Sunday every one over 35 years of age, is asked to occupy the reserved center section of seats just as a week ago the young people occupied this section.

The public is invited to be present and hear this sermon for parents.

The Tabernacle orchestra will begin playing at 7:30.

Cooler Weather Is Forecast Friday

North Central States to Get Relief From Intense Heat

By the Associated Press

Cooler weather was in prospect Friday for most of the North Central states. Relieved only temporarily during the week by thundershowers, the area welcomed the forecast of J. R. Lloyd of the Weather Bureau at Chicago that temperatures would recede to near normal in heat afflicted areas of the Lower Mississippi and Upper Mississippi valleys and the Great Lakes region.

Those areas, along with the South-eastern states and the Central Canadian provinces, continued to swelter in "unseasonably warm" weather yesterday, however.

New England and New York state, included in the early phases of the heat wave, reported temperatures below normal, while the Middle Atlantic states had little relief to expect, with a forecast of probable continuation of above normal thermometer readings.

Areas in the Middle West marked out for more comfortable weather Friday were Northeastern Kansas, Northwest Missouri, Eastern Nebraska, Iowa, Northern Illinois, Northwest Indiana, Western and Northern Lower Michigan, Eastern and Southern Wisconsin, Southern Minnesota, and Southeast and South Central South Dakota.

"Normal" varies sharply over the area. For illustration, it is 72 degrees in the northern part of the Great Lakes region, and 80 in the Southern section. Cooler weather spread over the Rocky mountain region, with temperatures below average for the period.

Officers on Watch for Convict Trio

Report That Chapman and Companions Are Touring State

PINE BLUFF.—Hundreds of officers in this section were on the alert following reports that Charlie Chapman, bank robber who is a fugitive from the penitentiary of both Arkansas and Texas, and two heavily armed confederates are touring this section.

The trio is reported to have displayed two machine guns and a sawed-off shotgun.

"We are prepared for any emergency," Sheriff Graland Brewster said as a dozen or more heavily armed officers were patrolling the highways in this vicinity.

It was reported that three men drove to a Fordyce automobile station, stole a new car and fled toward Risson. Two of the men were said to have occupied one car while the third fugitive was alone in the stolen car.

They later were reported in the vicinity of Monticello, apparently having back tracked on their hasty flight.

More than 3,901,800 persons are employed, either directly or indirectly, in the motor vehicle manufacturing industry in the United States, under normal conditions.

Note To Fliers

NEW YORK—(A)—If a bee flying through the windshield of an automobile can cause enough ruckus to wreck the machine, bees are just as bad for airplanes, insurance underwriters have advised fliers.

Some planes have smooth pans beneath the carburetor, it is explained, and bugs collecting there act as a sponge for gasoline and oil which can be ignited by a motor backfire. The cure is to extend the carburetor air intake beyond the pan.

Be careful in hunting from planes, too, the underwriters add. Recently a pilot shooting coyotes almost lost a wing spar.

Hog cholera was first found in America 99 years ago.

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY L. S. KLEIN
U.S. BEGINS TO EXPAND

THE new United States was hardly organized, when a company of Massachusetts residents offered to buy up and settle a large tract of land north and west of the Ohio. Through the efforts of Manasseh Cutler, they induced Congress to cede them nearly 5,000,000 acres of land at what virtually amounted to about one cent an acre. To effect the deal Congress passed the Northwest Ordinance of 1787.

By this law, a form of government was established for the lands northwest of the Ohio river, and provision was made that not less than three nor more than five states be cut out of the region.

By spring of 1788, an advance party of 47 men arrived at Marietta, on the Ohio, and built the first settlement in this new territory. Now, 150 years later, the United States has issued a stamp commemorating the establishment of the Northwest Territory, which includes the states of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and that part of Minnesota east of the Mississippi.

Technical Knockout Scored by Cargile

His Opponent Sustains Eye Injury—Bout Halted After 1st Round

"Tootsie" Cargile, hard-hitting local middleweight, scored a technical knock-out over Amos Voss in the first round of their scheduled four-round bout at the American Legion Stadium Thursday night.

Voss suffered a cut under his right eye during the first round. After examining the cut between rounds the fight was stopped to save Voss any further punishment.

Cargile has a much better developed left than he had last year with the same hard-hitting qualities in his right hand.

In the four-round semi-final bout, Fred Scott (162) won a decision over "Tiger" Hill (151) of Nashville. It was a good fight with Scott showing more class than he did against D. K. Carson here last Tuesday night.

The bright spot of the preliminaries was an exhibition fight between Preacher Walker and Edmund Davis. No decision was given. It was a good fight from beginning to end.

Jughead won a three-round scrap over George Fryson but lost another three-round to Jolly Witherspoon.

Johnny Phillips gave away ten pounds and lost the fight to Hosie Joe in the three rounds.

The two other preliminary fights were between George Sandefer and Louis Stewart, and Kid Snuff and Max "Bear".

A battle royal opened the card. Approximately 150 attended.

A Hit Not in the Box Score

Outfielder Jake Powell of the Yankees, right foreground, has just bounced his right hand off the jaw of First Baseman Joe Kuhel of Washington as Catcher Walter Millies of the Nationals rushes up to join in the bit of fistcuffs which enlivened a Yankee Stadium game won by New York, 16-2. Bitter feeling cropped up between Kuhel and Powell in a previous series when Powell crashed into the baseman in a close play at first. When they brushed shoulders again both started swinging and a good number of punches were landed before umpires managed to separate them. Note Kuhel's hat floating to the ground.

Lumberjacks Meet Taylor 3:30 Sunday

Elliott and Sparks Will Be Batteries for Hope Team

For the first time in two weeks the Williams Lumber company baseball team of Hope will be at home Sunday. The Lumberjacks meet Taylor at 3:30 p. m. Sunday.

Last Sunday the Lumberjacks were at Taylor, the game being called in the third inning because of rain. At that time the Taylor team was out in front by a score of 8 to 1.

Manager Lloyd Coop announced that Elliott and Sparks would be the batteries. He was undecided on the balance of the lineup, but said an Alton CCC recruit would probably hold down third base with Wallace Cook patrolling an outfield post.

Robins will be at first, V. Schooley at second and Weems at short. The balance of the lineup was uncertain Friday.

Coop said Taylor had one of the best clubs the Hope team has been up against this season. A large crowd is expected to see the game.

Bierne Team of Gurdon Wins Over Kraftsmen

CAMDEN, Ark.—Manager Porter's single in the 13th inning scoring Perdue, gave the Bierne Lumber Company a 5-to-0 victory over the Southern Kraftsmen at Cullendale park Thursday in the longest game played in Camden in three years.

Camden scored two runs in the first inning on hits by Downs and Robinson. In the third Bierne scored five on three errors and five hits. Camden got one in the seventh and tied the score in the eighth. Neither team was able to score after that until Bierne won the game in the 13th, although Camden had men on bases in every inning after the ninth. Lampkin of Camden with three out of five led in batting.

Umpire Cornelius of Bierne was shaken up badly in a collision at the plate but remained on duty.

The Kraftsmen will go to Bierne Friday.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Former soldiers and sailors of peacetime as well as war veterans would be provided with national flags for burial under a bill approved by the senate military affairs committee.

The estimated cost of the flags ($17 each) would be $22,800 for the first year and would increase later.

The bill would apply to honorably discharged former service men and women of all branches of the military service. Existing laws provide for draping only the caskets of veterans with actual war service.

Yanks Give Tigers Another Trouncing

Murderers' Row Belts Rowe and 3 Other Pitchers for 14 Hits

DETROIT—(AP)—Opposition pitchers were still just a dime-a-dozen to the New York Yankee sluggers Thursday as they stretched their undefeated streak to 10 straight games with a 13 to 6 trouncing of the Tigers.

Murderers' row belted Schoolboy Rowe, Roxie Lawson, Jack Russell and George Gill for 14 hits, including a homer by Henrich, and never left any doubt about the outcome after piling up five runs in the first inning.

At the same time, Lefty Gomez and Johnny Murphy, who divided the Yankee pitching assignment, handcuffed the Tiger clouters with five hits, among them home runs by Hank Greenberg (his 20th) and Rudy York. But for four New York errors, the Detroit run-production would have been cut to less than half of its total. Gomez fanned eight in six frames.

A single, three doubles and Lazzeri's round-trip clout with a mate aboard produced the five runs in the opening frame.

Two more were added in the second on Henrich's homer with Gomez on base. Another came in the third on Jake Powell's double, a foul and a fly. Another pair scored in the fourth

Chicago Cubs Win Regain First Place

Tex Carlton Allows Eight Hits—Cubs Get Total of 14

BOSTON—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs bounced back into first place in the National League Thursday by taking the Boston Bees' pitching staff for a 5 to 1 victory.

Dropped out of the lead by Wednesday's defeat, the Cubs clouted Tex Carlton and Ira Hutchinson for 14 hits Thursday, while Tex Carlton breezed along to his sixth victory of the year with an eight-hit performance.

The win pushed the Cubs past the New York Giants, who were idle Thursday, and thereby took their one-day spot at the head of the parade.

Every member of the Chicago cast hit safely at least once. Leading the attack was Frank Denvers, who collected three singles and drove in two runs. His three hits gave him a total of 100 for the season.

Gabby Hartnett managed the Cubs as well as doing his regular catching duties. He took over the pilot position while Manager Charlie Grimm was confined to his hotel room.

Pebbs Take Series Final From Barons

Victory Gives Little Rock Two Full Games Over Idle Chicks

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(AP)—The league leading Little Rock Pebbs gained a half-game over the idle Memphis Chicks by taking the final game of the Birmingham Barons series here Thursday night, 5 to 2.

The Pebbs got the jump at the outset, scoring two runs in the first inning, but Casey steadied and held them scoreless until the ninth when the visitors broke a 2-2 deadlock with a three-run spree.

Clancy, Barons first sacker, handled 15 putouts. Little Rock 200 000 003—5 1 1. Birmingham 001 100 000—2 9 1. Rogers, Pointexter and Thompson; Cincy, Moore and Garbark.

Lookouts Beat Crackers

Chattanooga 300 000 300—6 12 2. Atlanta 000 301 010—5 10 0. Sauerbrun, Tinning, Bazer and Earl; Lindsey, Beckman and Galvin.

Knoxville 11; Nashville 2. KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Dutch Myers, former football star at Texas Christian university, put on a Knoxville uniform Thursday and belted out a home run, triple, double and single in five times at bat to lead the Smokies to a 11 to 2 victory over Nashville.

He drove in six runs and took part in three fast double plays. Myers was signed by Knoxville a few days ago.

Nashville 000 000 200—2 7 1. Knoxville 202 103 208—11 15 1. Eiland, Speed, Work and Leggett; E. Chapman and Bandy.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(P)—The state health department today announced that 60 cases of infantile paralysis had been reported in the state since the first of the year, approximately the same number occurring during the same period last year.

It announced reappointment of Dr. W. B. Crapson as state health officer for a second four-year term and adopted a regulation that artificial lakes and other bodies of water used as reservoirs for municipal water systems must not be used for bathing and swimming.

She tucked the instrument under her chin at the state violin trials at Nashville and played the "Hobgoblin Dance," by Goby Eberhardt.

Escape Alcatraz? Only Release or Lily Lets you Out, 'Bigfoot'

This is the last of four stories on life "inside Alcatraz," related by the first convict ever to be paroled from the federal prison for incorrigibles.

By A. W. "BIGFOOT" DAVIS
(As told to Douglas Hicks)
(Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

There are just two ways to leave Alcatraz.

One is the way I left January 13, a free man, conditional release papers in my pockets I had earned by good conduct.

The other is feet first, with a lily in your hand.

Escape?

A carrier pigeon couldn't escape from "The Rock."

Rip tides slip past the jagged slopes. You wouldn't have one in 100 chances—if you could get to the water.

You can't get to the water. The dead-end guards, the iron discipline and lockstep, noisily rules; the never-sleeping, never-failing snitch machine; the precipices all make the bay un-reachable.

Joe Bowers was accused of trying to reach the water. He wasn't trying to, the way I heard it.

But he reached it, or the rocks near it—dead.

Joe Was Stir Crazy

It happened before I came, but the boys told me Joe was going crazy and used to dive on his face into jagged rocks in the yard, seeming to think it was a pool.

He was put on the incinerator detail. A guard caught Joe on the fence just outside the incinerator and just three feet inside a 70-foot drop to the rocks.

They told me Joe, nutty, had gone outside to get a piece of paper which had blown over. Maybe he was trying to break, I don't know.

The guard's first shot missed, the second caught him in the hip, the third through the chest sideways. He fell outside, rolled off the edge and fell 70 feet.

The guards take no chances. One day a man stuck his head out of the laundry building and was looking out across the rock.

He couldn't have got out of that window and gone any place without a pair of wings. But—

Bloom!

A guard's gun spoke up, and a piece of cement as big as my fist flew out of the wall not so far from the prisoner's head. He lost interest in things outside the room quick.

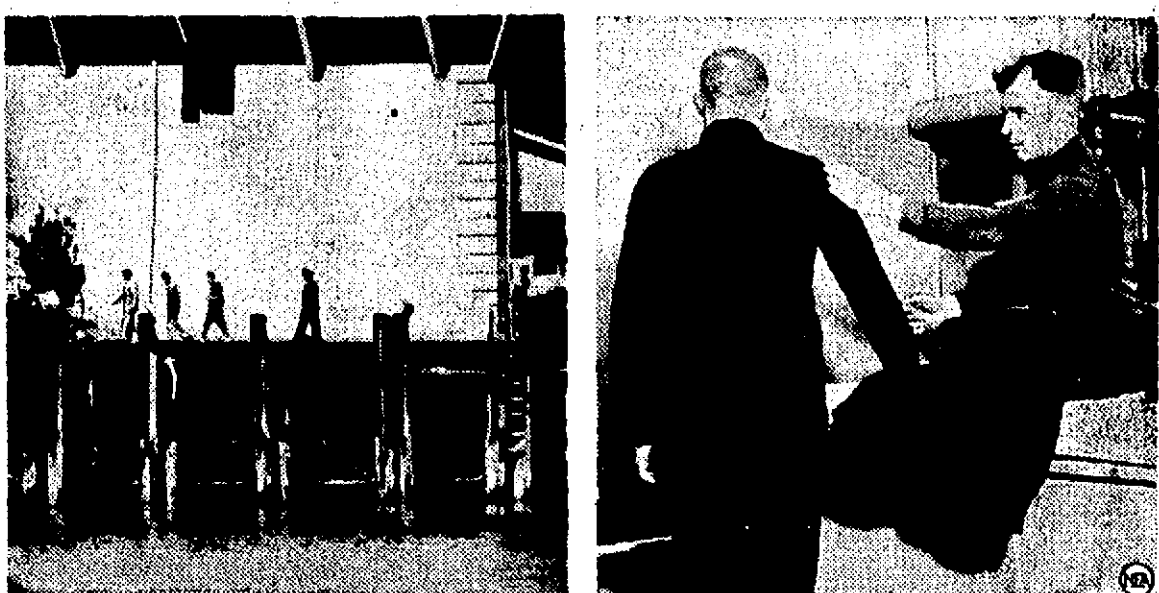

Afraid of a Trap

That gives you an idea how it is. You can't pick up a guard's cigarette butt and smoke it.

You can't have any money on you. I used to find it when I was cleaning up the Officers' Club, look at it and pass by.

It might be a trap.

After each meal every knife, every fork, every spoon is checked. You shave three times per week. When you want to shave, you put a matchbox on your door grill. An inmate orderly puts a blade on the matchbox.

When he comes around again, the blade had better be back on the matchbox.

You can go no place without a guard. You and the guard cannot pass a tower without a signal.

But They Do Fight

How does a man have a fist fight in a place like that, you wonder? It has to be managed.

Maybe in some corner of a building something is occupying a guard at the moment. Away down at the other corner of the building men are grouped during smoke period.

A quick swapping of looks—it has to be plenty quick—and it's over.

There are books and magazines to read, but there's censorship which often makes the men bitter.

If the men get interested in some fiction story, say, and are overheard by a guard talking about it, the guard tells the censor. Next issue the serial is missing, torn out.

The restrictions and routine would burn up the devil himself.

Get the "Don't Cares"

A lot of the guys get the don't cares, and no wonder.

So it's no wonder either that there is a good deal of cutting up and foolishness in the place. Some of the men couldn't make it if there wasn't.

One guy had a habit of singing at night. He claimed he sang in his sleep, but I think he was awake.

The guard would come to his cell. There he would be with his eyes closed. They suspected him but they never caught him.

One thing about The Rock, they don't suspect you and then beat it out of you until you tell. Not even a snitch's word is taken, but they keep an eye on you if you are fingered.

You have to be caught in the act. Then it's just too bad.

They Called Him "Gracie"

The deputy warden was a sort of a frisky guy. We used to call him Gracie Allen.

He would be walking through when somebody would pipe up from the back of his cell:

"Here comes Gracie!"

The others would take it up, and laugh, and the guards would run around. It was risky, for to be caught saying Gracie to the deputy warden meant real trouble.

Every legal holiday we saw a picture show. I remember seeing "I Dream Too Much," "One Night at the Opera," "San Francisco."

Every Sunday morning there were church services you could attend if you wanted to. Protestants one Sunday, Catholics the next.

Three hours were allowed in the recreation yard Saturday afternoons, three hours Sunday mornings.

Here is one that is hard to believe, but strict and tough as the place was I have seen several inmates drinking and one so drunk I thought sure he would be caught.

I won't say what they were drinking or where they got it.

Jittery the Last Few Weeks

And now I'll tell about how I left. I was nervous and jittery my last few weeks.

As soon as I had done my minimum time I had to do 72 days of good time. I had lost in the transfer to Alcatraz. Then there was 30 days to serve of investigative time for the $1000 fine I couldn't pay.

It's hard to say how you feel as you get short. You just get scared.

You don't know how your friends will take you. You know you will run into the police and maybe have trouble.

One day you feel like talking and singing, next day you get all dummed up.

I was notified when I made out my conditional release papers, same as for parole except I didn't have to have a job, that the date would be January 14.

I thought it ought to be January 12 and went to Warden Johnston. We decided it was January 13.

The other inmates asked me 1001 questions as I got shorter and shorter. I got lots of advice.

The Old Alcatraz Jealousy

About one-third, I guess, told me to go out and get even. I think a lot of them were sore and wanted me to get in trouble and come back—the old jealousy.

Two-thirds told me to get out and stay out.

"I've been in your shoes once," said "Machine Gun" Kelly. "That was when I got out of Leavenworth and had a chance to keep my nose clean."

FLAPPER FANNY By Sylvia

"Nothing seems to worry some people," "And it worries others terribly."

first time to be about twice too long. Why couldn't a man eat in 10 minutes? I had to be on my way! I had places to go.

But when I started down after breakfast to get a haircut, the guard made me go back and put me in my cell.

I walked up and down, up and down. I lay down. I tried to read. I jumped up again. What could have gone wrong?

I thought of 1001 things. Maybe somebody framed me! Maybe—

Dinner time, and no word from the warden. I didn't take much on my tray, had a hard time getting it down.

Two p. m. Tramping of feet, my door swung open.

I was taken down to get the haircut. I was in the barber's chair when Al Capone came in.

"Be sure and give Big Dave a good haircut," he grinned to the barber.

"It's his last one in Alcatraz."

After the haircut Al followed me into the bathroom. We talked about 40 minutes.

We finished about 3:30 p. m., and I was taken back to my cell.

Then out to the front office to be dressed out.

And—Out at Last

I put on a regular "main line" blue suit, a 10-cent rainbow-colored tie. In stead of the black navy officers' oxfords I was supposed to get, I got a pair of tan shoes blacked over, the blacking getting on my white cotton socks quick.

But my overcoat was a good one, regular navy issue. They made me take a cap, brown blanket material, which I put in my pocket and didn't try on until I got to Texas—and found it was too small.

I got on the McDowell, the speedboat, and we chugged away across the bay. I stayed down in the cabin until we were half way over.

Then I got up on deck and took a last look at The Rock.

It got dimmer and farther away, but not as quick as I would have liked.

I knew there were nearly 300 men on it, but it still reminded me of a big squatly tombstone.

The End
